Join us for an overview and discussion of the New Jersey Department of Children and Families \(DCF\) Keeping Families Together Program \(KFT\). The Keeping Families Together Program is a supportive housing model designed to prevent child maltreatment and family separation and reduce child welfare involvement among high-needs families. Kerry-Anne Henry, LSW from NJ DCF and Chelsea Fisher from the Ocean Mental Health Association join us to review:

- Core components of the Keeping Families Together Program including systems partners, targeted identification of families, housing intervention, case management and supportive services
- Strategies, barriers, and successes associated with working across systems
- Key considerations for supporting seamless systemwide delivery of supportive housing intervention among child-welfare involved families.
